Innovating in the Digital World

EXECUTIVE EDUCATION
Innovate your way through disruption

Get the tools to sustain, rekindle or inject innovation into your organisation

Programme focus

Harness the power of creativity and create your own innovation action plan for your organisation with this online, fully tablet and phone-compatible programme.

Each firm is fighting a different battle, but every innovation challenge has a solution. Work out what you need from innovation and use your own ideas as a force for transformation.

Join a set of eclectic and ambitious leaders from all around the world in this powerful online learning journey, led by internationally-acclaimed management thinker and LBS Professor, Julian Birkinshaw.

How you learn

Define your problem, create your solution

Pre-programme: Before you begin, know what you want to leave with. What problem do you want to fix? Choose to focus on yourself as an individual, your team or your organisation. The programme gives you a manual to enact change immediately.

Weave innovation into your culture at work. Make it practical, and make it last. Discover how business experimentation unlocks true growth.

Do things differently. Step outside expectation and witness how the power of creativity can transcend limitations.

You work through each module at your own pace, selecting material based on your own innovation challenge.

Professor Birkinshaw will host two online webinars: one at the start of the online programme and one before completion.

Business experts, professional coaches and your peers support and guide your journey.

“Innovating in the Digital World is an excellent programme and provides you with a new lens to see the issues, innovative tools & techniques which are more relevant and helpful even when you have to build resilience and respond quickly - the highest priority for my organisation.”

Dr. Uttam Kumar (India), Senior Director of Engineering, Rakuten
What you learn

This programme is practical to the core. Your own innovation challenge forms the bedrock of learning.

Module 1 | The innovation imperative
- Understand why innovation is so important in today’s digital world through four key principles that will be themes we follow throughout the programme.

Module 2 | Defining your innovation challenge
- Think about the internal barriers to innovation in your company and the threat and opportunity of digital disruption. Determine the innovation challenge on which you will work.

Module 3 | Generating ideas
- Gain a toolbox of techniques to help you and your team become frequently more creative.

Module 4 | Structures and techniques for developing ideas
- Learn how to follow a process and build a concrete plan for any new project, so it is easier to get support.

Module 5 | Making it happen
- Think about how to move your plan forward by getting support for your idea and enabling others to become more effective.

“Due to the world’s current situation, high-quality online programmes like this suddenly become more valuable than ever before. It is a great thing that you can earn a certificate from such a prestigious University from the comfort and safety of your own home. That is truly priceless for me.”

Alejandro Bolaños-Zeledón (Costa Rica), Marketing, Communications & Digital Strategy Consultant, SKR Comunicacion

Is it right for me?

This programme is designed for functional managers and executives who are tasked with igniting innovation within their organisation or need to solve a major challenge in a creative way. Those who will benefit include:

- Senior executives leading business units or companies who want to induce a culture of innovation within their teams
- Functional managers who oversee an internal function such as product development, marketing, or operations and want to systematise a process for innovation
- Founders/Entrepreneurs who want to solve a particularly vexing challenge they face as a newer or less-resourced enterprise
- Consultants who want to learn a proven methodology for building innovation capabilities into their clients’ organisation

Do you

- Worry about digital competitors?
- Want to understand how new ‘agile’ methods are useful, and try them out?
- Want to experiment with the business models of innovators like Amazon?
- Need to instigate dramatic improvements in efficiency and quality?
- Work with risk-averse individuals who hold back a culture of innovation?

This programme covers the full spectrum of concepts and techniques you need to ignite innovation in any kind of organisation.
